

The Computer Guy's Services

- On-Site Troubleshooting & Repair
- Virus, Trojan & Spyware Removal
- Broadband Installation & Setup
- Wireless Networking
- Back-up & Recovery
- Technology Consulting & Training
- Web Development

On-site Troubleshooting and Repair

Most business professionals don't have time to loose bringing a computer to a repair shop. The Computer Guy makes it easy for you by coming directly to your office to troubleshoot and repair as needed. We makes it convenient for customers to get their problems solved quickly. In extreme circumstances The Computer Guy may have to take the PC, repair it and return it fully operational.

Virus, Worm and Spyware Removal

With thousands of computer viruses, worms and spyware in circulation on the internet. Every user with broadband internet connections are the prime targets for hackers, worms and viruses. Unfortunately these malicious programs, if allowed to propagate cost business users millions in lost revenue each year. The Computer Guy provides suggestions for the best software and hardware solutions to stop the continuous attempts by these predators.

Broadband Installation & Setup

With increasing demands for Internet access speed it is expected that every office have Broadband available. If you lack these necessary connections, The Computer Guy will install the proper equipment, resolve connectivity issues, and create a high speed internet connection accessible to multiple computers in one location.

Wireless Networking

The Computer Guy can create a wireless network in your office for internet access, file and printer sharing through a single wireless router. This is the best option when considering the installation of a network in an existing office environment. Wireless networking allows mobile users with laptops and handheld devices convenient access when within range of the router. All computers on a wireless network can function just like a wired network with much less expense and trouble of deployment. Wireless routers have encryption technology to ensure secure communications. Expansion of a wireless is simple and only requires the addition of the user device as most routers can handle 253 users...

Back-Up & Recovery

Regular backups are the only way to protect against a system failure would cause the loss of critical corporate data. Even with this knowledge, many customers fail to backup their data, databases, digital photos and other important files that would cost a fortune to replacate. The Computer Guy provides your with solutions, hardware, software & training that helps protect your data and guards against catastrophic loss of corporate knowledge .

Technology Consulting & Training

The Computer Guy not only offers his clients options to establishing a more productive technology competent operation, but also provides advice for the most cost effective hardware and software solutions. Loosing productivity through the lack of training, slow computer, or crashing software is very costly when you add it up over just one year. Our training & solutions can remove those costly delays and save you time and frustration.

Web Development

Your website is much more than just a place on the internet. The Computer Guy develops custom websites that help develop online business, promote your personal image and provides your clients with applicable content presented in a logical, reliable and intuitive manner. We specialize in developing Content Management Systems that provide the owner with the ability to add and change the content as their business needs change. A successful website has the ability to combine rich content and innovative design with intelligent applications. We use state of the art Open Source, time proven scripts and applications to achieve this. Our experience and track record gives us the edge in creating dynamic websites that interacts with users in a reliable and effective manner.